'Sowing Seeds Of A Little Rock In Britain' COLOUR BAR CAMPAIGN

Tory MPs Want Immigration Laws Amended

London, Aug. 28. British lawmakers stepped up pressure on the Government today to clamp down a "colour bar" on unlimited immigration of Negro and Asian workers into Britain.

But Prime Minister Harold Macmillan was reliably reported to be opposed to any Government action for fear of damaging Commonwealth relations.

Norman Pannell, Conservative Member of Parliament for the Kirkdale Division of Liverpool, placed a resolution on the agenda of the Annual Conservative Party Congress in October asking the Government to amend Britain's immigration laws.

At present these permit unrestricted entry of any Commonwealth nationals.

Blocking Bill

Another Conservative MP, Cyril Osborne, called on the Government to take powers to exclude immigrants who are "black, criminals or idlers."

Osborne urged the Government to include in its autumn Legislative programme, a bill blocking all immigration from Commonwealth countries for a year.

Osborne is sowing the seeds of another Little Rock and it is thought, Osborne told newsmen. He added that if serious unemployment hits Britain, there will be trouble. It will be black against white.

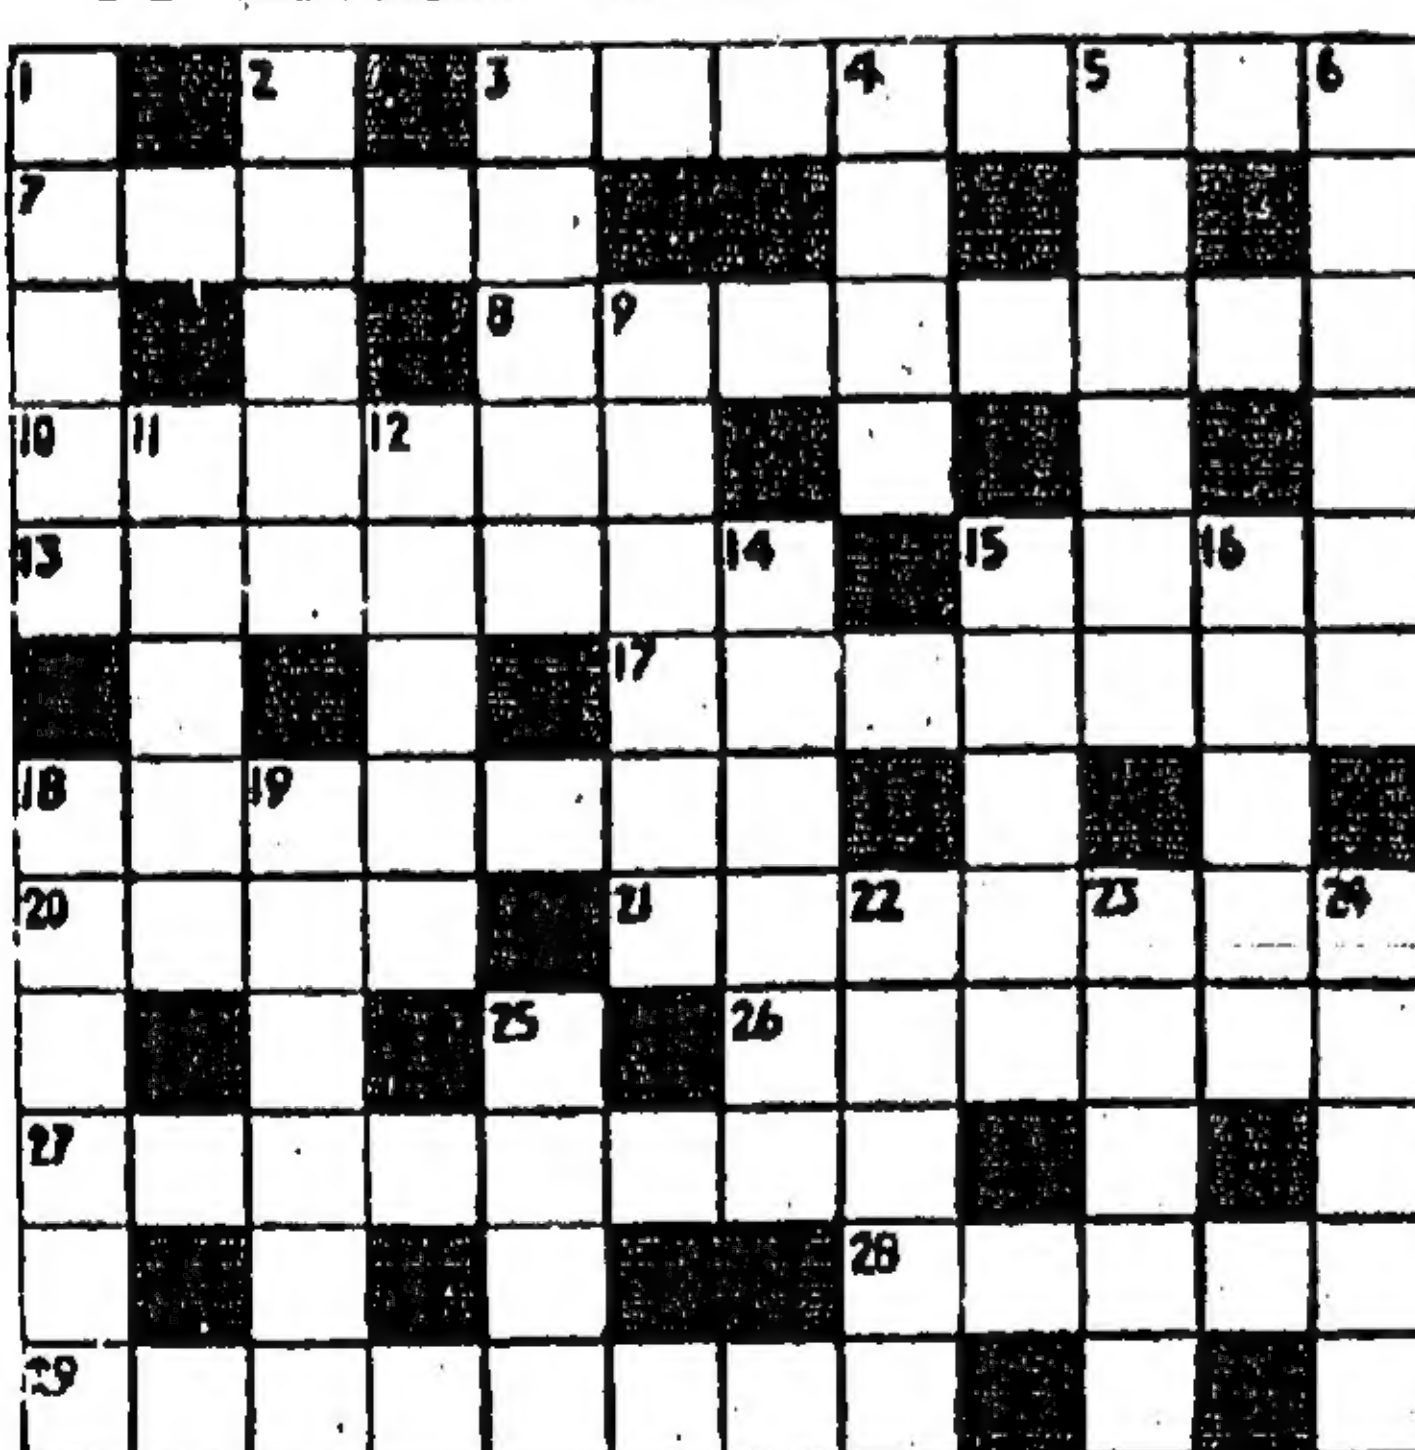

The campaign was touched off by Britain's worst race riot at Nottingham on Saturday night in which hundreds of whites and coloured workers from the West Midlands clashed for several hours in vicious fighting.

Full Report

Home Secretary, R. A. Butler, called for a full Police report on the Nottingham clash and was reported to be studying whether the Government should take some action to slow down coloured and Asian immigration.

At the moment there are about 200,000 coloured and Asian workers from Commonwealth countries in Britain—more than half of them West Indians. They are still pouring in at the rate of 700 to 800 weekly.—U.P.I.

Iraq Renews Pledges To Honour Oil Agreements

By K. C. THALER

London, Aug. 28. The Iraqi Government of Brigadier Abdul Karim Kassam has given fresh pledges to honour existing international oil agreements and has outlined plans for doubling the country's oil output.

The assurances were given to G. H. Hertridge, Managing Director of the internationally-owned Iraq Petroleum Company who just returned from talks with the new leaders in Baghdad.

REAFFIRMED

The new Iraqi Government has reaffirmed in these discussions its intention to honour the agreements with the foreign oil companies, and let it be known that its policy was to keep the oil flowing.

As an immediate outcome of this development plans will be put into operation to double the oil output from its present level of 30,000,000 tons annually, to some 60,000,000 tons annually, by the end of 1961, it was reported authoritatively.

The operation lies in the hands of the Iraq Petroleum Company which is owned in equal parts by United States, British, Dutch and French interests.—U.P.I.

IT WAS MURDER

Hollywood, Aug. 28. A coroner's autopsy today disclosed that actress Helen Jerome, 50, found dead in her apartment yesterday, was murdered.

Character actor Edwin Jerome, 63, the victim's estranged husband, told officers he had last seen Mrs. Jerome alive on Tuesday night and found her nude body when he returned yesterday.

The autopsy report showed that Mrs. Jerome was strangled.—U.P.I.

AUNT TOLD HER

'No Need To Read Or Write'

Weston-Super-Mare, Aug. 28. A WOMAN evangelist who told her 11-year-old niece she had no need to read or write, that everything would be "provided by the Lord," and she would become an evangelist, has been ordered not to communicate with the girl for three years.

The girl's father told the juvenile court here the woman—his sister-in-law—and her husband came to stay at his house for several weeks, and held religious meetings every night there.

The child left home to visit a Manchester relative and eventually stayed in a place they discovered was a house of ill-repute, the court was told. The parents appeared for exposing the girl to moral danger so that she required protection. The magistrates made a supervision order for three years, with the condition that the child should stay at home and the aunt must not communicate with her.—China Mail Special.

DIANA DORS' MISSING MONEY FOUND

London, Aug. 28. Thomas Yeardy, friend of British film actress, Diana Dors, said today that the £11,000 missing from her safe deposit account at a London store was safe.

He said: "I have transferred the money on her behalf to safeguard her, because Miss Dors is going into the horse business."

Yeardy made this statement to newspapermen on landing at London airport from France, after Miss Dors had lodged a complaint with the police that the money was missing from her safe deposit.

There had been some thought of excluding part of the most inaccessible northern reaches of the territory. The answer was resoundingly in favour of keeping the present boundaries for the new state.

The record had to do with the transfer of 103,500,000 acres of Federal lands to the new state. The answer was again yes, but with the reservation that the President of the United States has the power to reclaim some of it for military purposes in time of national emergency.

Alaskans will go to the polls again on November 25 to elect their governors, senators, representative and various state officials.—France-Press.

Now Admiral Of Three Navies

Wellington, Aug. 28. The Duke of Edinburgh "has been delighted to accept" the appointment of Admiral of the Fleet in the Royal New Zealand Navy, the Minister of Defence, Mr. Phillip Connolly, said here today.

"This is an honorary appointment which will give the Duke of Edinburgh the same rank in the Royal Navy and the Royal Australian Navy," Mr. Connolly said.

"I feel that it is an honour of which our Navy and New Zealand as a whole can be proud."—China Mail Special.

MOTHER GASSES SELF AFTER MALE FRIEND COMMITTED SUICIDE

Brierley Hill (Staffs), Aug. 28. A 34-year-old mother of six children, who gassed herself after receiving a letter from the father of a man friend who committed suicide a month ago, was stated at an inquest here to have left a note to the father saying:

"I know now that only my death can bring you satisfaction." The note added: "I did so want to live because of my kids."

A verdict of suicide while the balance of mind was disturbed was returned on Mrs. Sylvia Georgina Hill, of Mullett Street, Brierley Hill, who was found dead at her home last Saturday.

"Can you not let things pass without causing me and my mother any more distress than what we have had and will always have?"

"The way I have read it my boy was all to blame for causing my trouble. If that was so, why did you write letters of love to him? I have shown them to your husband just to prove that my boy was not all to blame."

"I intend to clear that good name of his. In your statement to the press you said you could not keep him away, but I know you gave him every encouragement."

P. C. Adams said that on the back of that letter he wrote written by Mrs. Hill in reply. She wrote:

Never Blamed

"I have never blamed Vic and would not. The letters I wrote him were meant only for his eyes, but you have passed them round like some comic papers. I hope the readers got pleasure from them. I know now that only my death can bring you satisfaction, and I did not want to live because of my kids."

"May God forgive me."—China Mail Special.

The $64,000 Question

MAN'S SENSATIONAL CHARGE AGAINST QUIZ PROGRAMME

New York, Aug. 28. A former participant in a second television "Quiz" programme alleged here today that he was told beforehand the answers to questions he would be asked, and that there was a rehearsal before each screen appearance.

He was led to make the exposure by the allegations which caused the closing of the "Datto" programme.

The man who, it was reported today, complained to the Justice Department, wished to remain anonymous, and the name of the show in question has not been revealed, though it is said to be one of the biggest.

Fully Rehearsed

He told the Department and press representatives that his screen appearances were always fully rehearsed.

He was quoted by the Journal American as saying: "I was told how to bite my lips, clench my fists, look agonized as I supposedly struggle to find the answer. They even told me how, at the last moment, to make my face light up as if the answer had suddenly come to me. It all made the thing very dramatic."

The man said that after he had won several tens of thousands of dollars, the managers of the programme decided that he was beginning to lose his attraction for the public, and forced him to give a wrong answer, the New York Post said.

Very Angry

He decided to make his revelations to the Justice Department through a lawyer who followed him winning more than $100,000.

United States Attorney, Frank Hogan, said today that the inquiry into the matter was going on, and added that he had not yet found sufficient formal proofs that the Quiz shows were mostly prearranged and aimed at cheating the public.

Justice Department sources said today, however, that at least 12 people had so far been asked to make statements in the matter, which is arousing enormous public interest.—France-Press.

The Blow-Pipe Age!

Kuala Lumpur, Aug. 28. British people still thought Malaya were still living in the "blow-pipe" age, Mr. Y. K. Choo said today.

Mr. Choo, town councillor and school teacher, said:

"In some places school children are still taught that Singapore was the capital of Malaya—the ordinary British people think we are still living in the blow-pipe age."—China Mail Special.

Expectant Woman Found Dead In A Ditch

Oxford, Aug. 28. Two coloured men and a French woman were sent for trial here today to London's Old Bailey Central Criminal Court charged with the manslaughter of a pregnant 39-year-old Jamaican woman whose body was found in a roadside ditch near here.

They were Fitzroy Emmanuel Collins, 47, said to be president of a society called the African League, Edward Ernest Crichton, 40, and Ann Maureen 30, all of whom gave London addresses.

NOT GUILTY

They pleaded not guilty and reserved their defence. They were allowed bail, the magistrates agreed to the commitment to the Old Bailey because of the London connection of the case, Sildgen, otherwise known as Corinna Sildgen, in the metropolitan police district of London between July 6 and 7 this year.

At yesterday's opening of the hearing, Mr. E. G. McDermott, prosecuting said Sildgen died from an attempted abortion. Counsel for the three accused submitted that there was no case to answer.—China Mail Special.

Attlee's Advice To Baldwin On King's Marriage

London, Aug. 29. Lord Attlee, taking part in the BBC's "Portrait of Stanley Baldwin" in the home service said that at the time of the abdication of King Edward VIII he was asked by Mr. Baldwin to give his opinion on the possible reaction of the Labour Party and the workers of London to a morganatic marriage.

"I said it was no good thinking in terms of London about this. You had to think about the provinces—the people in the west riding of Yorkshire and elsewhere. I said that in my opinion they would be against it. I also said that you can take it from me that Commonwealth opinion will be much more in line with Yorkshire than with London."—China Mail Special.

A CHINA MAIL WRITER BACK FROM MOSCOW REPORTS
A SIGNIFICANT TREND IN THE STRUGGLE FOR OUTER SPACE

U.S. Ahead Of The Russians —Despite That Failure!

I HAVE just come back from a grueling 10 days in Moscow. Five hundred scientists from all over the world were meeting there to describe what they have been doing during the 13 months of the International Geophysical Year, and their plans for the future. Satellites dominated the scientific talk.

I can report that though the Americans have seemed in the eyes of the world to have done handsomely with their space programme they have in fact achieved more than the Russians.

To begin with, take the "first up" story.

Their second

Though the Sputnik that rose into the sky to astonish the nations last October was called Sputnik I it was the ninth the Russians had fired. The first eight failed. When you know this fact the space-prestige scramble takes on a new look.

The successful American satellite launched on January 31, Explorer I, was only the second satellite the Americans tried to get into orbit. (It is still up, by the way.)

NESTUM

BABY CEREAL

From the fourth month onwards or according to doctor's advice, an addition to the milk diet is essential to meet the needs of baby's growth and development. Supplementary feeding ensures satisfactory progress and sounder sleep. The early introduction of a mixed diet promotes healthy bowel action and reduces tendency to constipation.

ESTUM-18

ORANGE in bottles

Although the first U.S. moon rocket blew up the other week at Cape Canaveral, Florida, ANGELA CROOME, just back from Moscow, reveals that America has already overtaken Russia in the exploration of outer space. Russia, she says, snatched the propaganda glory.....while the U.S.A. has quietly got the scientific facts.

This means that though the Americans were not first at the post, they achieved success in getting a satellite off the ground earlier, in relation to their own timetable, than did the Russians.

For the Americans have made no attempt to conceal their results in space, so the score is plain for all to read.

I can confidently report that there is a good reason for the different kinds of success of the Russian and American rockets.

The motive behind the two programmes is different, so the rocket policy has been different. The Russians were out to make a splash; the Americans wished to make discoveries.

The Russians have got what they wanted. So have the Americans. (Though it now seems the two countries are switching horses and the Americans are seeking frontally for a splash while the Russians may well pep up their science.)

The Moscow conference made another space fact abundantly clear. It is that while the Russian Sputniks have been very big and very heavy, they have made curiously poor use of the amount of weight and room available.

By comparison with what their American counterparts have packed into their tiny vehicles one might say the Russians have wasted their satellite opportunities so far.

Radiation zone

The first, indeed only, genuine new fact to come out of the research done from satellites is the location of a deep belt of powerful radiation enclosing the Earth a hundred miles or so above the atmosphere.

Explorer I glimpsed this radiation zone; Explorer II confirmed it, and Explorer IV (launched the week-end before the conference opened) has, we were told in a special message cabled to Moscow, established that the radiation gets steadily stronger the farther the satellite gets from the Earth, and presumably goes on rising in intensity above 1,400 miles up, the top of the satellite's orbit.

I also learned that the zone of radiation approaches considerably closer to the Earth towards the Poles.

It was to find this out that Explorer IV was put into an orbit that reaches 15 degrees farther North and South round the world's waist than previous American satellites.

To do this the launching-rocket was fired in a generally northerly direction, from Cape Canaveral instead of down the South Atlantic before.

What significance has this newly discovered zone of radiation round the Earth at the edge of space? It would seem to make space travel for humans more hazardous than had come to be expected.

The radiation dose received in an hour in an unshielded spacevesel at 1,000 miles high as equivalent to the total dose permitted to industrial workers for a whole week. Higher, it will be greater than this.

Much depends on how deep the zone ultimately proves to be; so far only its fringe has been probed. If it is only a few thousand miles deep a manned moon-rocket travelling at 25,000 m.p.h. (the speed needed to qualify) will pass through it in a few minutes.

Deep

But it may be tens of thousands of miles deep. As yet we do not know. Until we do it would be rash indeed for a man to venture so far afield.

Yet the first rocket voyage across interplanetary space is imminent.

One other revelation came out of the Moscow conference: the exact fate of Little Lemon, the first animal to spend a week of its life in orbit.

I can now tell you that she ended her days a hot dog—in fact a very hot dog indeed. Only the waters of the Amazon succeeded finally in dousing her flames.

There, Laska ended—a drowned cinder. The first man into space will probably meet the same fate.

THE ELECTRONIC PULPIT

BRITISH talent scouts are going into churches looking for candidates for television shows at 17 guineas an appearance.

The vicar may be looking down on a small congregation. If he is blaming TV for the empty pews, it is not Harry Belafonte on the B.B.C. or Frankie Howard and Sabrina on commercial TV who are his competitors, but the electronic pulpit which the TV networks have set up as a rival to Evensong every Sunday.

TV has begun a big game of Hunt the Parson in preparation for the autumn programmes. Region by region the B.B.C. is gathering in its flocks from the rectories, little groups of ecclesiastics who will study films of other persons in action and have a go themselves before the cold eye of the camera, in the hope of becoming national figures.

A.T.V. and A.B.C., the commercial week-end companies, are scouting the churches for dog-collared talent.

Thirty ministers at a time are picked and tested in brief episodes in order that a panel of outstanding men can be built up.

The competition between B.B.C. and ITV for the latest TV audience-selling commodity, the Controversial-Cleric, grows as winter approaches. A faint unease ruffles the surfaces of the nation. No wonder.

'Ratings'

Three men—one clergyman and two laymen—now have an average congregation every Sunday of something like 5,000,000. These men behind the electronic pulpit are the Rev. Oliver Hunn (B.B.C.), Tom Singleton (A.B.C.), and Michael Redington (A.T.V.), who works under the advice of Princess Margaret's friend, the Rev. Simon Phillips.

Behind them the men who run TV have an extra satisfaction. They know that if religion can produce a good provocative programme at 7 p.m. on a Sunday, the audiences it attracts is likely to stick to the same channel all the evening.

TELEVISION TALENT SCOUTS IN BRITAIN START BIG GAME OF 'HUNT THE PARSON'

Both the main religious programmes clash. So "the ratings" are important. Religion comes wrapped up in a bright new package, and the Personality Parson becomes as much a competitive commodity as a chorus girl.

Said Mr. Hunn: "The official view of our religious advisory committee is that there should not be competition for the best parsons. But it certainly looks as though there is at the moment."

The stars

The reason is that very few clerics have made much of an impact on the small screen. Two of the best come from the Midlands, Yorkshire, Community of the Resurrection—the head, Father Trevor Huddleston, and Father Hugh Bishop.

There has been the quiet, easy-going Archbishop Hoenan for the Roman Catholics; the gimlet penetration of Dr. Donald Soper for the Methodists; the good-looking charm of Bishop Anthony Bloom for the Russian Orthodox Church-in-London.

But mostly the parsons have not turned out too well. Sometimes they boom as if the parlour were a cathedral nave. Or they turn into over-jocular uncles, plunging into discursive on sex or nuclear fission with more enthusiasm than knowledge.

ROUND-UP

WHISKERS ON PARADE

TO members of the Handicapped Club, a moustache of over five and a half inches could be worth a place in the club's cricket eleven to meet a team from the Stars Organisation for Spastics at Shepherd's Bush, London. No member with less than the regulation growth will be allowed to play. Opposing the Handicapped players will be such celebrities as Harry Secombe, Peter Sellers, Eric Sykes, and Terry Thomas. The man with the biggest moustache in Britain, John Roy, who sports 22 inches of upper lip hair, will also be present.

STORIES FOR CHILDREN

CHILDREN'S story-tellers are visiting Nottinghamshire villages during the summer school holidays as part of a scheme organised by the Nottingham County Library Service, to encourage children to read. Each week two library vans are touring 85 villages, and at each stop the children's librarian will hold a story hour for the younger children. After the children have picked their books they will sit around the van on village greens or school playing fields listening to stories being read.

I talked to two of TV's successful parsons.

Said Father Bishop: "When one thinks of the harm done by some of these broadcasts—some of them give quite the wrong impression—it seems clear that the Church should set up a TV centre where we can learn what to say and find out to whom we want to say it. But the clergy are still jealous of TV."

Said Dr. Soper: "I take a lot of trouble over TV. I ask candid friends what I really look like from this angle or that. I listen to my voice. I study the professional TV performers in action. Unless you're a super genius you soon exhaust yourself."

Complaints

The Churches have not yet reacted, officially to the desirability or otherwise of the electronic pulpit's new competitive drive for them. But it is certain there is keen feeling in the vicarages.

Parsons complained that the Archbishop of Canterbury's recent appearance—on—ITV—"emptied the churches."

The archbishop once described TV as "another way of wasting time." And it only takes a "trailer" to plug the cricketing cleric David Sheppard to put the TV audience up 10 per cent. Tomorrow the Personality Parson might join an argument on "Is it proper for an actor

Reporting Life On The Level Where Money Really Doesn't Matter

A Wife Thinks Twice About £600 A Week...

PARIS NEWS LETTER by SAM WHITE

Paris.

If Aly Khan is to secure the permanent services of the champion Australian jockey, 35-year-old George Moore, he will have to exercise all his charm on Moore's extremely attractive wife.

It will be she who decides whether the Moore family, including their three young children, emigrate to France. The fact that Aly Khan is so evidenced by the prominence she enjoys in Aly's current social life in Deauville.

The Moores are constant guests at Aly's villa there and his friend, the ex-model Bettina, is Mrs. Moore's regular escort to Paris on clothes buying expeditions. Mrs. Moore, tall, blonde and with a beautiful complexion, is one of the loveliest women at Deauville this season.

TOO MANY

She is a woman of admirable poise and great charm. So far, however, despite her evident enjoyment of her life at Deauville, her pale blue eyes do not light up with joy at the prospect of making her home here.

The daily race meetings ("There is a limit to the number of times you can go to the races," she says) bore her after Australia where race meetings are a weekly event.

As for the flattery with which she and her husband are surrounded, she merely says: "It is true George could be a big name here, but then he is a big name in Australia already."

When reminded that another Australian jockey, Rae Johnston, settled down happily in France, she said shrewdly: "Yes but he married a Frenchwoman. A Polles Bergere girl, wasn't she?"

Mrs. Moore, a sophisticated woman, was nevertheless mildly surprised when she was introduced to Bettina merely by this professional name.

Despite Mrs. Moore's coolly appraising approach to the subject Aly Khan, aided by another owner, M. Pierre Wertheimer is going ahead with his campaign to persuade Moore to settle here.

He has been offered a handsome house in Chantilly and as the matter is being seriously considered by Moore, the money offered must be somewhere in the region of the £30,000 a year which a top jockey can earn in Australia.

By contrast a top jockey in France is unlikely to earn more than £15,000.

BARBARA CAILLEUX
See Eligible

Moore, who in 23 rides here has ridden eight winners and had eight of his mounts placed, catalogues his doubts about life in France in the following order. The high cost of living (I paid five bob for a beer yesterday); the food ("You eat more here in two days than in a week at home"); and with a doleful look at the grey-green Channel, the contrast between the beach at Deauville and his favourite Sydney beaches.

As for Aly's offer to him, all he will say is: "Aly Khan has made me a very attractive offer and it is very difficult to make a decision. It is bad luck that Rae Johnston is in Australia just now I need his advice badly."

CASINO intelligence, Gloucester man in Deauville is casino king Francois Andre. Takings at Deauville Casino are down 50 per cent compared with last year and Cannes Casino is down by about 60 per cent.

Andre attributes the drop solely to political uncertainty in France which has kept many Americans away and rendered the French cautious in their spending.

ELIGIBLE

Any morning in the deserted Bois de Boulogne a tall, dark man is to be seen performing acrobatic feats on a fast-traveling American motorcycle.

The man seemingly endangering his life in this careless manner is not a professional dare-devil after keeping in form but one who is rated on the matrimonial stock exchange as high in the list of eligible bachelors.

He is a year-old Count Francisco "Baby" Pignatari, the enormously rich Brazilian manufacturer of every kind of non-ferrous metal.

He achieved some notoriety earlier this year when, after being trailed by Miss Linda Christian all over North and South America, he lured students and taxi drivers to chant "Linda Go Home!" outside her Rio de Janeiro hotel room.

Pignatari would like to forget this incident now because he is at present involved in a very serious courtship. This is with a willowy, blonde Balmain model, Mlle. Barbara Cailleux. He is taking her to London this weekend, where they will be guests of the Brazilian Ambassador, Dr. Assis Chateaubriand.

Pignatari has been married twice—once to an Italian and then to a very beautiful Brazilian woman who was apparently so possessive that his life became completely domesticated.

"The seven-year itch worked in both cases," said Pignatari, commenting that each marriage lasted seven years.

A SECRET

Pignatari, who is exceptionally handsome and looks 10 years younger than his age, is a technician. Under his management, production in his factories has increased 300 times since his father's death 20 years ago.

His income is a secret, safeguarded by a not Brazilian law which provides for incomes to be paid in bearer shares which do not have to be declared to the inland revenue.

His industries are self-financed, 80 per cent of the profits being ploughed back into the businesses every year.

WINDFALL

Fashion note: Playboy's Porfirio Rubirosa's appointment as Ambassador in Cuba has brought a windfall to Paris fashion houses.

Madame Rubirosa, the former part-time actress Odile Robin, has been deluging them with orders ever since the news was announced. She will take a wardrobe of 42 new dresses with her to Havana.

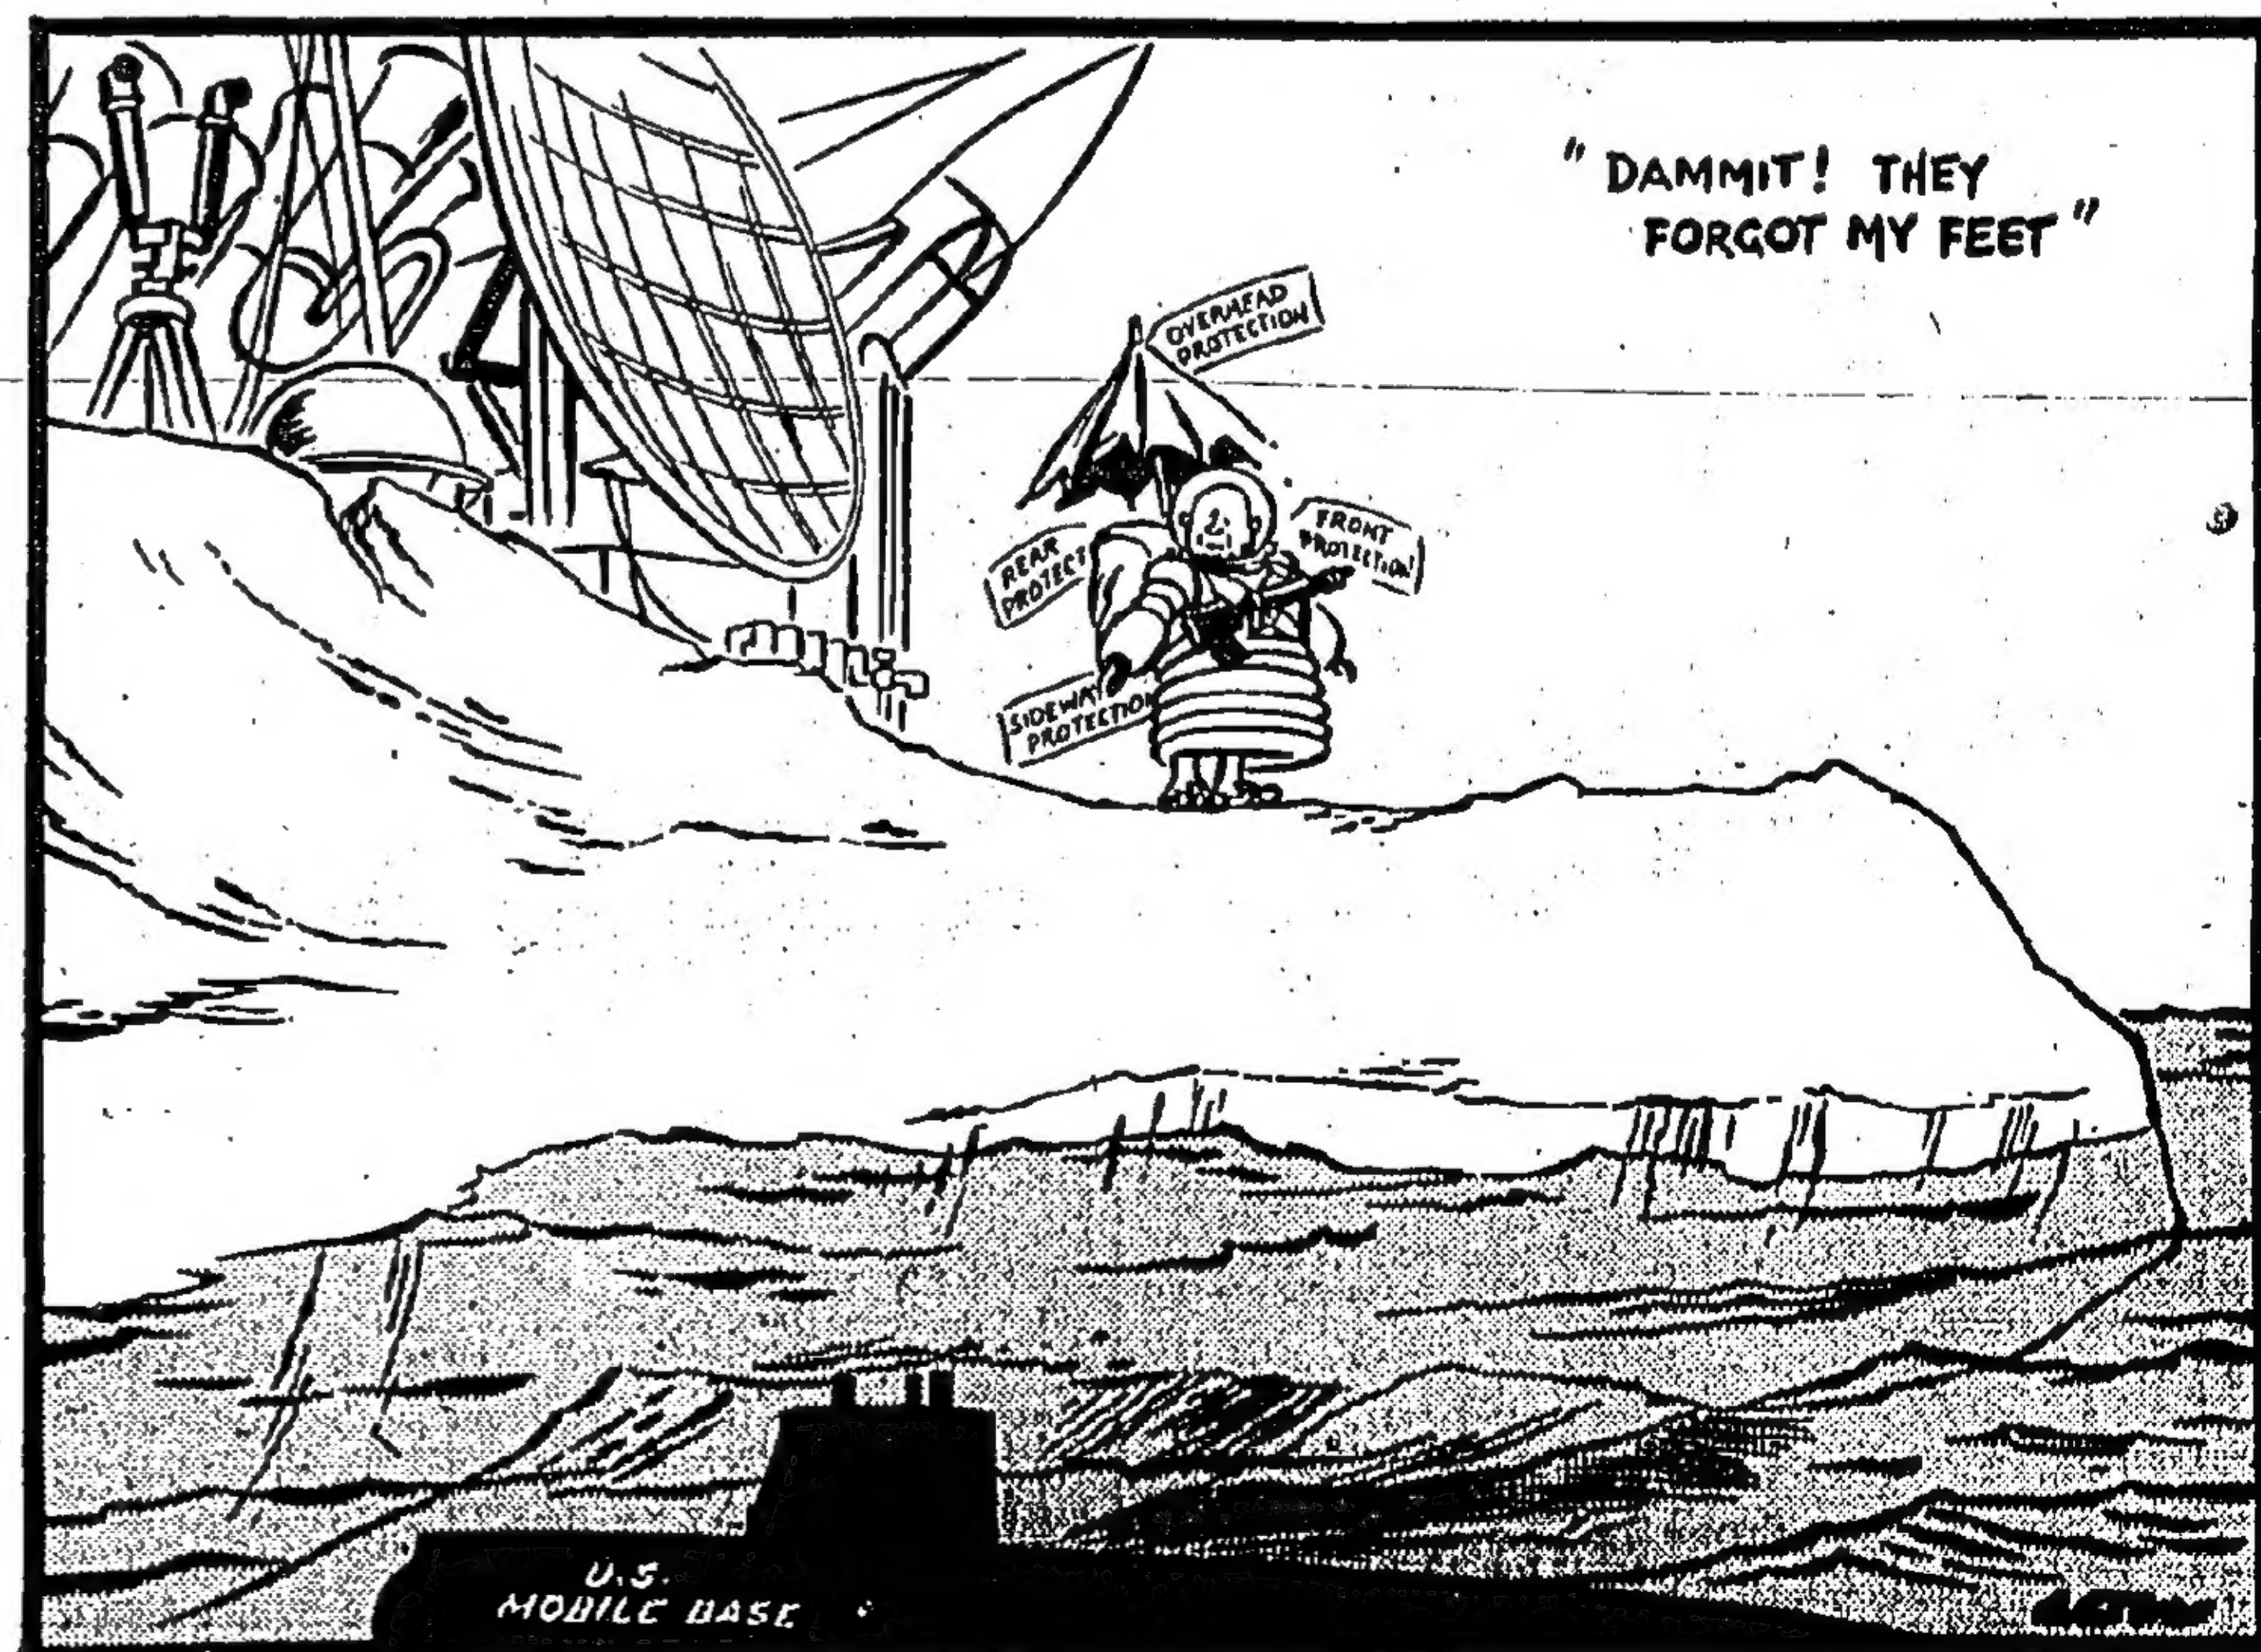

ANSWER

POLITICAL NOTE: Critics who complain that General de Gaulle is incapable of firm action have been partly answered by the fact that he has banned parking over a wide area in the Rue de Gennelle on either side of his official residence.

COMEBACK?

Film note: Ballet dancer Serge Lifar is consulting with Greta Garbo on the Riviera about the film Hollywood is to make of his life. She may be persuaded to play a part.

JACOBY ON BRIDGE

Winner Knows Foe's Weakness

BY OSWALD JACOBY
Leo Hazen of New York has been one of our best and smartest dummy players for many years.

His opening no-trump was slightly shaded but he certainly held 15 good points plus one ten and two nines. If North had only bid two no-trump, Leo probably would have passed but North had great confidence in Leo's dummy play and jumped right to game. West opened the device of clubs and Leo won East's queen with the ace. He saw no reason to hold off since the heart suit was also stopped only once.

Against many players Leo would have laid down the king and hoped to drop the queen but Leo returned to his own hand and finessed successfully against West's queen.

Why did Leo make this play? The answer is that East was one of those inveterate false-carders and Leo knew that he was. Hence, East would surely have dropped the queen if he held both queen and jack.

Why did Leo make this play? The answer is that East was one of those inveterate false-carders and Leo knew that he was. Hence, East would surely have dropped the queen if he held both queen and jack.

Against many players Leo would have laid down the king and hoped to drop the queen but Leo returned to his own hand and finessed successfully against West's queen.

Says BARTOK

THERE'S always something else besides acting they want from me," says Eva Bartok.

In her new film OPERATION AMSTERDAM, now being shot at Pinewood, she has to drive a heavy pre-war Mercedes-Benz hundreds of miles.

And she had to drive at, she says. "In 'The Last Speed' towards the water's 'Waltz' I had to do an acrobatic dance, and in 'The Crimson Pirate' I had to climb a ship's mast out at sea — at night."

This was on location in Amsterdam. The front wheels of the car were nearly off the quayside before Peter Finch saved her — a frightening shot in which split-second timing and good brakes were essential.

But Eva is used to doing the "something extra". In 'Carnival Story' I had to dive into a blazing tank,"

Here's a family who know how to enjoy their spare time

JOHN McCALLUM and Gogie Withers, who married 10 years ago, after co-starring in It Always Rains on Sunday, are hoping that it won't tomorrow. And they hope for many more dry Sundays in the few months left to them before they emigrate to Australia in the autumn. John is giving up acting to take a managerial job with an Australian theatre company.

Gogie plans to go riding tomorrow with her seven-year-old daughter Joanna. And John has a date with a golf ball on the course which lies conveniently over the garden hedge of The Mirrie, their home at Upper Denham, Bucks.

But the fact that he has only to climb a stile to have "Forest" echoing in his ears was only one of the attractions of the Queen Anne style house.

When I called he was devotedly pruning an Eden Harkness in a spacious rose garden surrounded by an immaculately clipped hedge. On the smooth lawn beyond Joanna and 17-month-old Nicholas were tussling with an inextinguishable box called Mutt.

John and Gogie bought The Mirrie, which stands 300 feet up on the first rise of the Chilterns, five years ago. "I remember it was a searching hot day," said John, "and this was the fifth house we had tried. The roses were in full bloom—and two deck chairs stood on the lawn. Gogie sank into one and managed to breathe. This is it."

The Mirrie, I suggested, rounded like something Aus-

Iron Chicken's Wish

—She Kept Trying To See The Wind—

By MAX TRELL

"THERE are birds who live in cuckoo clocks, and birds who live in cunary cages," Chirple Sparrow was saying, "but the queerest bird I ever met was made of iron and lived on the roof of a red house at the end of the road."

Knarf, the Shadow Boy with the Turned-about Name, who was sharing some bread crumbs with Chirple on the garden wall, asked: "What bird was that, Chirple?"

"It was a chicken," replied Chirple.

"A chicken made of iron?" exclaimed Knarf in a surprised voice.

Favourite Topic

Chirple said: "Yes, that's what it was—an iron chicken. I often used to fly up to the roof and talk to her. We only talked about one thing — the wind."

Knarf said: "Now that's pretty strange, Chirple—I mean, to talk to an iron chicken—which is pretty strange to begin with, don't you think so?"

"Why did you talk to her about the wind?"

Chirple swallowed two or three bread crumbs before answering.

"Well," he finally said, "it seems that the main reason that iron chickens stood on top of the roof was so that people below, looking up at him, could tell which way the wind was blowing."

Curious Bird

"This curious bird always looked straight into the wind, no matter whether it was coming from the east, the west, the north or the south. She just kept swinging around. So I asked her why she kept doing that—looking into the wind, I mean." Chirple went on.

"What did she say?" Knarf asked.

"She said there was only one reason why she kept looking into the wind. She said she was trying to see it. So I asked her whether she had ever seen the wind."

"Why, no one can see the wind," replied Knarf. "It's invisible. You can only feel it blowing."

"That's right," Chirple agreed. "The iron chicken — I heard some folks call her a weather vane—told me she never really saw the wind though she kept trying to see it all time. She said, no matter how quickly she turned around, the wind always seemed to go past before she had a chance to get a good look at it. But being an iron chicken, and not having much else to do anyway, she kept right on trying."

Finally Saw It

"She kept trying for years and years," Chirple went on, "to see the wind."

"One day she said to me: 'Chirple, a wonderful thing happened a little while ago. I'm sure I finally saw the wind.'"

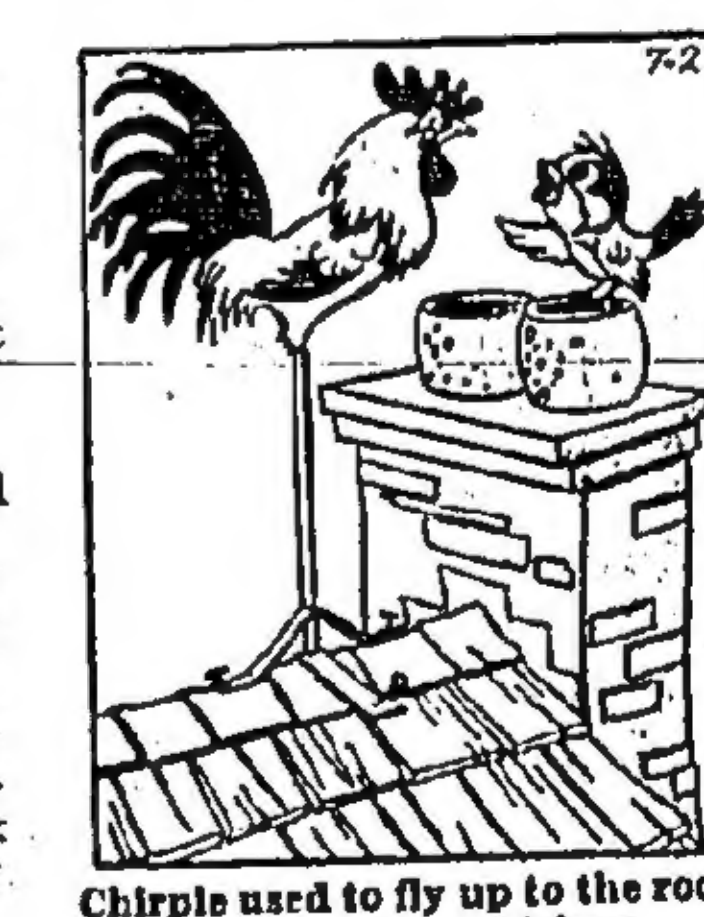

"Really, I said. Tell me more about it."

"I felt it coming toward me," she said. "I looked around very quickly. I caught a glimpse of something thick and dark."

"Thick and dark?" I said. "Did it seem to come from the chimney of this house you're standing on?"

"Why, yes," said the iron chicken. "That's exactly where it seemed to come from. You don't think it was smoke, do you?"

"No," said Chirple. "She never did. But she's still trying. I'm sure of that!"

Chirple used to fly up to the roof to see the iron chicken.

"I don't think it was anything else," I told her. "Nothing ever comes out of a chimney but smoke."

"But I felt the wind in it," said the chicken.

"The wind was there 'all right,' I said. 'That's what was blowing the smoke.'"

"Was the iron chicken disappointed when you told her that?" Knarf asked.

Hidden In Smoke

"Not too much," replied Chirple. "She was sure that the reason she hadn't seen the wind was because it was hidden in the smoke, but she decided to keep trying."

"And did she ever see the wind, Chirple?"

"No," said Chirple. "She never did. But she's still trying. I'm sure of that!"

"I don't think it was anything else," I told her. "Nothing ever comes out of a chimney but smoke."

"But I felt the wind in it," said the chicken.

BITS OF FUN

AND now back home to London, England, where Alan Hackney, most comical of Victor Gollancz's comic turns, attempts to top the wild success of "Private's Progress" with a nice bit of fun-poking at the trades unions—PRIVATE LIFE (Gollancz, 13s. 6d.).

It tells how Stanley Windrush seeks a excellent job, is interviewed, finally ends up as a driver-loader at Millers Ltd.

He earns good money, he falls in love with the shop steward's daughter, he even buys a little bubble car like Billy Wallace's. But then one day he shows off his speed of loading to a time and motion man who puts in a report. Everyone strikes in a rage.

Pickets lift the bubble car from the road. The shop steward's daughter decides to be a pop singer instead, and in the midst of it all sits terrible Mister Hitchcock, the personnel manager (remember Terry-Thomas's part in the film of "Private's Progress"), saying "Quite frankly, Windrush, you've acted like a sheer Charlie..."

OBSERVATION

WRITERS are always marvelously eccentric. A man called Harvey Breit has been going around for years interviewing them and he has published his findings altogether in one great volume called THE WRITER OBSERVED (Alvin Redman, 15s.).

Ernest Hemingway told him, "What you do is okay, but some of the people you talk to stink on with their job. Like this:—T. S. ELLIOT, in tall, stooped, attentive, a little rancid like a trapped, graceful bird."

NOEL COWARD is... slim, as a jack-knife and productive as General Motors.... WINSTON CHURCHILL eats 22 frankfurters at a time, without mustard, while George Jean Nathan can only eat 20.

All of which is great journalism, which I love; and it is a delight for me to find someone utterly unrepentant of writing it.

Says Harvey Breit, "The day has passed when one takes a book for literature and journalism for its deplorable opposite."

English County Cricket SURREY-SOMERSET MATCH HALTED BY RAIN

Yorkshire Tighten Grip On Hants

London, Aug. 28.

Four of the seven English county cricket championship games were completely washed out today by heavy thundershowers affecting most of the country.

At the Oval, London, where Surrey were hoping to beat Somerset and clinch the title for the seventh successive year, the pitch was under two inches of water.

Though no play was possible, the sun shone late in the afternoon and helped considerably in the drying out for the final day tomorrow.

In Bournemouth, where Surrey's only real challengers, Hampshire, are meeting Yorkshire, rain limited play to one over before lunch. It then ceased and the match was resumed promptly after the interval.

Yorkshire, who gained a first innings lead of eight runs yesterday when Hampshire lost their last nine wickets for 36 runs and were all out for 118, took a firm grip in the game today by hitting 263 for nine wickets in their second innings. Main run-getters for Yorkshire were their Captain, Ron Burge, who made 54, and England's last bowler, Freddie Trueman, who followed up his midweek test score of 39 not out by hitting the Hampshire attack for a solid 53.

Hampshire will tomorrow be without opening batsman Jim Gray, who went down today with tonsillitis.—Reuter.

OUTRUNS FORMER 1,500 METRES RECORD HOLDER BY 20 METRES IN 3' 36"

Goteborg, Aug. 28.

Australia's wonder runner, Herbert Elliott, today smashed the world 1,500 metres record in 3 minutes, 36.0 seconds at the international "August Games" before a delirious crowd of 40,000—the largest ever to attend an athletics meeting in Sweden.

The frantic cheering continued as cameramen and television crews crowded on to the track, and it was not until Elliott had completed a lap of honour that the crowd would allow him to return to the dressing room.

Even then, Elliott had not the heart to send away the group of autograph hunters who surrounded him. Later he signed the "Golden Book" of the Ullevi Stadium, inaugurated for the recent World Football Championships, and now "baptised" with its first world record.

Ran To Win

At an impromptu press conference after the race, Elliott told reporters that he had made no plans for the race, but had simply run to win, like the others.

Asked whether he thought he could manage an even better time in the future, Elliott declined to answer, but reminded pressmen that he was running at Malmoe tomorrow.

Elliott said he was neither tense nor nervous, before the race, and laughed when told that everybody had been hoping for a world record.

He said he intended to continue training and running while his trainer, Percy Cerutti, needed his approval. Finally, as if wishing to share the credit for his remarkable performance, Elliott praised the condition of the Goteborg track. It explained the remarkable times achieved today, he declared.

Placings

Final placings were:
1. Herbert Elliott (Australia) 3 mins. 36.0 secs.
2. S. Jungwirth (Czechoslovakia) 3 mins. 39 secs.

3. M. Halberg (New Zealand) 3 mins. 39.4 secs.
4. I. Rozsvoegly (Hungary) 3 mins. 40 secs.
5. Dan Waern (Sweden) 3 mins. 40.8 secs.
6. S. Lovandowski (Poland) 3 mins. 41.1 secs.
7. Ulf Berthil Lundh (Sweden) 3 mins. 42.1 secs.
8. Ingvar Eriksson (Sweden) 3 mins. 42.8 secs.
9. Derek Ibbotson (Britain) 3 mins. 50.8 secs.
10. A. Thomas (Australia) 3 mins. 55.1 secs.

Fantastic Time

Elliott clipped more than two seconds off the previous record of 3 minutes, 39.1 seconds set up last year by S. Jungwirth of Czechoslovakia.

At the start of the race, run in cool, clear weather, Jungwirth, Waern and the Australian Thomas took the lead, and kept ahead for the first 200 metres. Thomas continued to hold the lead, followed by Derek Ibbotson of England, Waern, Jungwirth and Elliott. The first lap was completed in the fantastic time of 56 seconds.

Soon afterwards Elliott began putting on the pressure. First he passed Jungwirth and by the 400-metre mark he had overhauled Waern to take third position.

Meanwhile, the Hungarian I. Rozsvoegly was putting in a strong challenge and at the 800-metre mark, covered in minute, 57 seconds, he was well up among the leaders.

At this point, Elliott pounded into the lead, badly followed by Halberg of New Zealand, with Rozsvoegly and Waern in third and fourth positions.

Remarkable Pace

By the 1,200-metre mark, Elliott was well ahead, with a time of 2 minutes, 55 seconds. He kept up his remarkable pace and at the finish was a full 20 metres ahead of Halberg.

The lean and lanky Elliott was born in Perth on 25th February, 1938, and showed his first sign of promise as a middle distance runner when, at the age of 16, he won a student's championship mile in the creditable time of 4 minutes, 23.6 seconds.

In 1956, Elliott first met the famous Australian trainer, Percy Cerutti. It was a meeting which changed his career. Elliott placed himself, body and soul, in Cerutti's hands, and the first results of this partnership came out in the following year, when the young runner, still not 19, covered the 500 yards in one minute, 50.7 seconds, the mile in 4 minutes, and the two miles in 9 minutes, 0.1 seconds.

Elliott first broke the four-minute mile barrier on January 22 this year, when he clocked 3 minutes, 59.9 seconds.

Famous Battle

Exactly a week later, at Melbourne, came the famous battle of the glads between Elliott and Mervyn Lincoln, in which both broke the four-minute mile. Elliott finishing first in 3 minutes, 57.9 seconds.

By this time it was regarded as only a matter of time before Elliott gained the world record, and the expected happened at Dublin on August 6 of this year, when he romped home in 3 minutes, 54.5 seconds, smashing the former record of 3 minutes, 57.2 seconds, set up by the English runner, Derek Ibbotson. Elliott has never yet been beaten over the mile, and has run the distance in under four minutes on no fewer than eight occasions.—France-Press.

University Edge Out Matadors 13-9 In Ladies' Softball Match

By "TIME-OUT"

King's Park was the scene of some excitement yesterday evening when the Hongkong University ladies beat the green Matadors in a softball match by 13 runs to nine.

I use the word 'excitement' lightly since the whole game can best be described as much ado about nothing and the only person qualifying as a candidate for the ulcer brigade was the U's coach Bill Silva.

He didn't stop pacing up and down for one moment. He coaxed and he shouted encouragement—and some of this infectious enthusiasm rubbed off on the Matadors team to such good purpose that they shocked the winners with a six-run spurge in the very first inning!

One Of Dullest

But frankly speaking I had a trying time suppressing a yawn because in my opinion it was one of the dullest softball games I have ever witnessed. "Popeye" Ozorio and his sister Digna started off for the University but after conceding four walks and three wild pitches and allowing a single hit the former was replaced on the mound by lefty Ena Remedios. When the Matadors were six runs ahead.

This proved to be a short-lived lead because in the next two innings a pair of doubles with runners on base one each from Ruby Liang and Ena Remedios put the U on level terms.

In the bottom of the third frame the winners capitalised on a series of miscues by the Matador defence to score twice more, and to prove it was no fluke the first time up Ena slashed out another double to put the game on ice for the U as the long inning finally closed with six more runs to the U's credit.

They allowed the opposition a trio of runs and scored one more run to make it 13-9 in this mercifully short game. It was called off by the plate ump in the fifth inning because of darkness which brings us to the question of late starts.

The match commenced 35 minutes after the scheduled time, no base umpire could be found and no result the plate umpire was in sole charge.

Those who follow this game are so often treated to such spectacles that it might be fitting for the Umpire-in-Chief to take some badly needed action.

SPORTS PERSONALITIES

ANWER JAVADH

A Cricket

Player

Who Bears

Watching

This

Season

By TONY MYATT

The Hongkong cricket season is just around the corner and rivalry is once again expected to be very keen among the various teams. As at the beginning of every previous season, there are bound to be this year a number of new faces and of course, many of the old ones too.

Our personality this week is in neither one of these two brackets. He did play last season, but due to pressure of work and not being familiar with what he terms our rather "slow wickets" was unable to accomplish anything really outstanding.

Ceylon-born, Anwer Javadh, is a quiet unassuming young man, who has had the ability to back him up and the fortune to be coached by one of the world's famous cricketing personalities.

He is the elbow-up, eyes-on-the-ball type of batsman, a perfectionist who thinks runs come second to playing a correct innings. Style is of the greatest importance in his books and I am sure anyone who has seen in action knows he backs up his theories.

Gifted

Anwer's pet stroke used to be he loves the game and thinks it is the best form of outdoor sport. He treats a net practice and a game with purpose and seriousness. What's more he is gifted with a batsman's greatest virtue—patience.

His cricket career began when he was 11 years old. When he was 15 years old he was picked, mainly for his fielding to represent St. Aloysius' College, where he was studying in Ceylon. His coach, a former all-Ceylon player, soon detected signs of promise and Anwer was batting number one down for the College.

In 1953, he got his big break. Leary Constantine, the world-famous West Indian cricketer was visiting Ceylon during January of that year, and the outstanding cricketers from various schools in the island were chosen to undergo coaching by him as future prospects for the all-Ceylon side. Anwer was one of them.

Final Advice

Although these coaching sessions lasted for only a month, Anwer told me he learnt a great deal from them—more in theory, however, than in actual stroke play.

Constantine's final advice to him he told me was "If you want to improve your batting, keep your left elbow up." After watching Anwer it is quite easy to see he is following this advice to the letter.

During his association with Constantine, Anwer played against an all-Ceylon selection, but failed to do anything spectacular.

Left Ceylon

Anwer also played for one of Ceylon's leading cricket clubs, the Saracens. His team entered the Daily News Trophy and reached the final of the competition. Anwer left Ceylon during the semi-finals, however, but at the time of his departure was leading the batting averages.

He was also captain of his College XI during a season in which they won all their matches.

Anwer came to Hongkong in 1957 and joined the Indian Recreation Club for whom he will be playing this season. Prior to this he was in Singapore, where he was selected to play for the Singapore-Ceylonese XI against the Ceylon team that visited there last year.

Last season his top score was 49, against Army South. It was an innings which one of the Army players later commented as being the best he had ever seen.

His Top Score

His top score to date, however, has been 108 in an inter-school game in Ceylon.

Anwer plays cricket because the hook, which Anwer has written a series of articles on "Who's Who" in cricket, referred to him as "Relish the Hook" Javadh. Now he has to prefer. He still has a good hook, however, and the ability to glance on off-break.

This last item requires no foolwork, which Anwer has acquired through constant practice—as much as five sessions a week for three hours a time.

Anwer will be seen in action again this season for the IRC, and he is determined to make a real go of it. He has already started to practice and hopes to be in top form for his first game. I am sure he will and what's more I am confident you will be hearing a lot more of him during the next six to seven months.

Australian Swimmers To Hold Another Exhibition

Arrangements have been finalised for the Australian swimming team to stage another exhibition programme at the Victoria Park Pool on Sunday commencing at 8 p.m.

The extra exhibition series will be held under the auspices of the Hongkong Chinese Amateur Swimming Association.

The Australians will leave for Taiwan on Monday for a five-day exhibition tour at the completion of which they will return to Hongkong before leaving for home.

Challenge Trophy For Water Speed Record

London. Mr Donald Campbell, British water speed ace, was presented today with trophy here for breaking the world water speed record.

The trophy—a replica of the UNO building in New York—was presented by Mr Robert Beverley Evans, a Detroit industrialist, who gave it for perpetual competition.

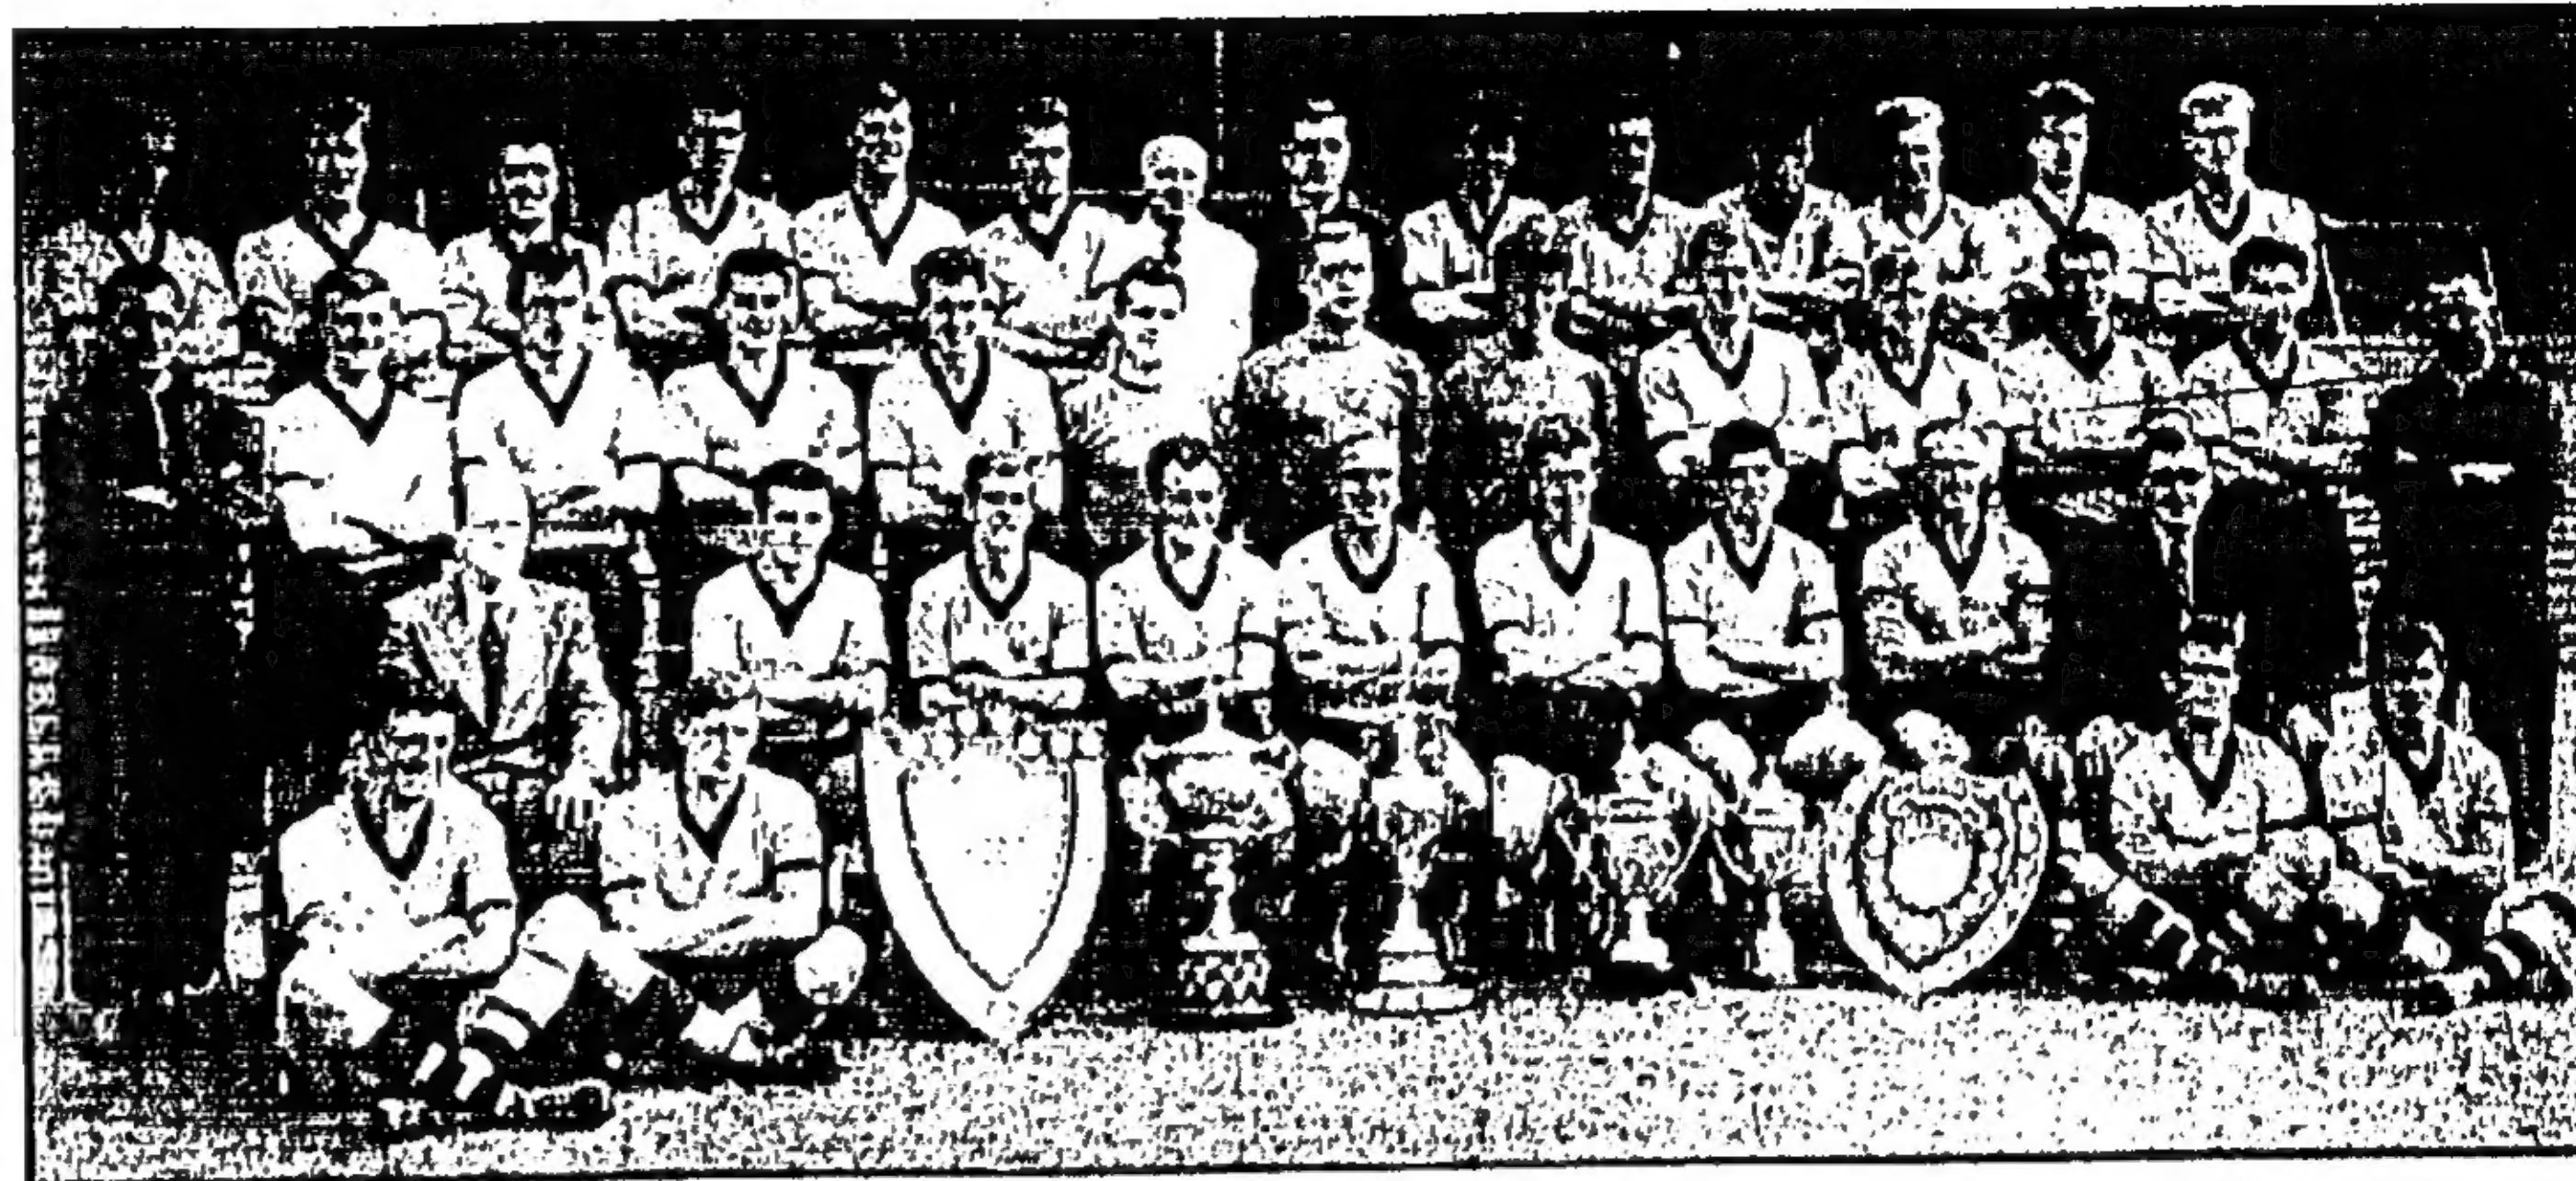

Mr Campbell aims to set up a new water speed record of 250 miles per hour on Coniston water next month. His present record is 239 miles per hour, set on the same lake last summer.

At the presentation ceremony, Mr Campbell repeated his wish to go to America in 1960 to attempt a new land speed record at Utah salt flats in his new Bluebird car.—China Mail Special.

Watch Out For The New Players In Tomorrow's Matches

All Set For The 1959 Season

London.
New players can make quite a bit of difference to a team. Luton, already a smart side, should be all the better for signing Billy Bingham, the quicksilver Irish international outside right, from Sunderland.

One effect of this additional strength in attack can be to help Luton earn a draw at Birmingham.

Watch out for a draw at Blackpool. The home side seem to have the skill to beat Manchester United. But they may not get the chance to settle down against United's eager youngsters.

And the young men of Chelsea have it in them to hold League Champions Wolves to a draw. Sound sides which play workmanlike soccer and give nothing away are generally good draw bets. So the uncompromising Huddersfield can share the spoils at Burnley.

Charlton's straightforward approach makes them a good bet to bring back a point from newly promoted Brighton.

One of the toughest battles of the day may be at Sunderland. The home team, relegated from the First Division last season, will find their determination matched by Liverpool, who narrowly failed in last season's promotion battle. It adds up to a draw.

Better Chance

Notts County, relegated to the Third Division last season, would stand a better chance of regaining their Second Division place if the affairs of the club were happier. But the players are still determined and can hold Halifax to a draw.

The Newport - Chesterfield game sees the clash of two sides who give little away. So mark this one for a draw. Gateshead's match with Oldham is an even better banker. These teams were draw champions last season. Oldham drew 17 games and Gateshead 18.

The Fourth Division may serve up three other draws in Crewe v. Chester, Shrewsbury v. Coventry and Workington v. Port Vale.

Repeat Performances

In Scotland Third Lanark and Rangers can give repeat performances of their drawn game of last week. The tense battle for points in section Four of the Scottish League Cup may produce draws in both games with Falkirk being held by Aberdeen and Hibernian drawing at Kilmarnock.

Tottenham look one of the best away prospects. Their side promises well especially on the firm grounds we get at the beginning of the season. They also play better against a footballing side and so should do well at Blackburn.

Leeds do not seem to be in for any better time than last season when they were generally struggling against relegation and I think they will go down at home to the small but slick Burnley side.

Pick Of The Homes

Pick of the homes seems to be in the Third Division in clubs like Aston Villa, Bradford City and Burnley. I would complete the list with the following: Doncaster, York, Huddersfield, Brighton, Charlton, Sunderland v. Liverpool, Halifax v. Notts County, Newport v. Chesterfield, Crewe v. Chester, Shrewsbury v. Coventry, Workington v. Port Vale, Third Lanark v. Rangers, Falkirk v. Aberdeen, Kilmarnock v. Hibernian.

Away Winners

Away winners: Tottenham, Burnley, Sheffield Wednesday, Fulham, Reading, Brentford, Huddersfield, Celtic. Draws: Birmingham v. Luton, Blackpool v. Manchester United, Chelsea v. Wolverhampton, Barnsley v. Huddersfield, Brighton v. Charlton, Sunderland v. Liverpool, Halifax v. Notts County, Newport v. Chesterfield, Crewe v. Chester, Shrewsbury v. Coventry, Workington v. Port Vale, Third Lanark v. Rangers, Falkirk v. Aberdeen, Kilmarnock v. Hibernian.

Britain's professional soccer season has just opened, and no team is more prepared than this one — Wolverhampton Wanderers, winners of the Football League Cup for 1958. The first and second team players and their reserves are pictured here.

US National League Baseball MILWAUKEE BRAVES SCORE 3-0 WIN OVER GIANTS

San Francisco, Aug. 28.
Del Crandall and Red Schoendienst made life miserable for Johnny Antonelli in leading the Milwaukee Braves to a 3-0 victory over the San Francisco Giants in today's only Major League game.

Crandall scored the first Milwaukee run off his former room-mate in the fifth inning when he walked, stole second, then need all the way home on the run play as catcher Bob Schmidt and centre-fielder Willie Mays committed an error apiece.

The Braves' catcher next worked Antonelli for a bases loaded walk in the eighth to force across Milwaukee's third run.

Schoendienst got four hits in five trips off the stylis' Giant southpaw and doubled home the Braves' other run in the sixth.

Tagged For 10 Hits

In the meantime, Big Rush posted his seventh win of the season after losing three straight. It also was his second shutout of the year, although the Giants tagged him for 10 hits and got men aboard in every inning. A total of 11 Giants were left stranded.

The victory gave the Braves a 4-1 edge over San Francisco in what had started out to be a "crucial" series and moved them 7½ games ahead of the idle Pittsburgh Pirates.

Antonelli gave up six hits while losing his 11th game of the season.

The Results

NATIONAL LEAGUE
Milwaukee 000-011-0-3-0-1
San Francisco 000-000-0-0-0-2

Killed By A Javelin

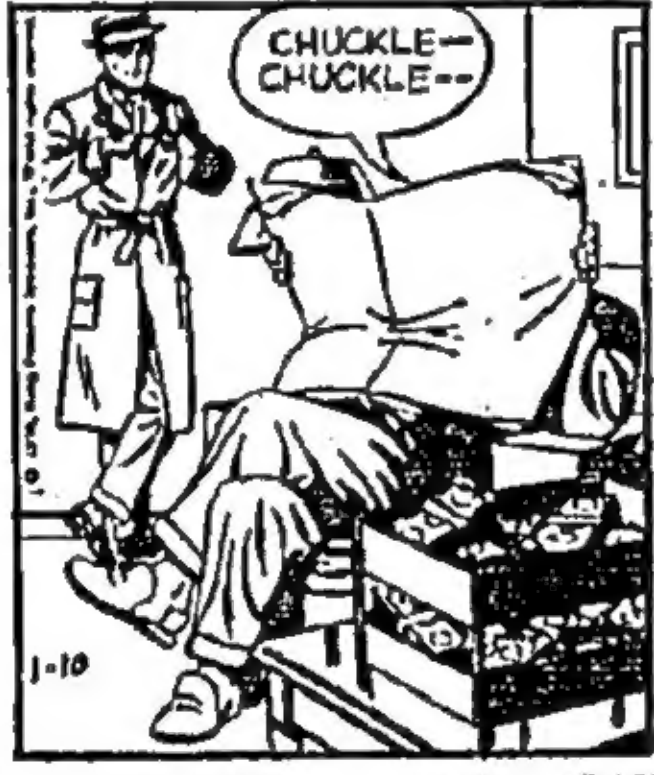

Stockholm, Aug. 28.
Swedish relay runner Bo Larsson was killed by a javelin thrown by another competitor during an athletics meeting at Johanneshovs stadium here tonight.

The javelin entered his chest, near the heart, and injured the main artery. He was dead before he reached hospital.

Larsson was jogging on the grass to loosen up before starting in the relay semi-final and had not heard a warning given by officials starting the javelin event at the other end of the stadium.—Reuter.

A SPOKESMAN has said that we are now passing through a stage between inflation and deflation.

This is known as stagflation and means that while prices continue to rise the cost of living falls. This is due to the leveling-off process which, during a period of overall integration, narrows the gap between the actual recessionary tendency and the existing margin of stable prices. The present trend is for the ratio of buying and selling to balance the interim effects of losses against the probable increase in capital expenditure as exemplified by the residual expenditure necessitated by individual requirements.

The Queen turns to Chelsea for a new Palace decor

ONE of the most historical suites in Buckingham Palace is to be redecorated by a woman who specialises in the contemporary style. It is the Belgian Suite, the suite which was the Duke of Windsor's favourite, where King George VI held most of his wartime talks with Sir Winston Churchill, and which has held a host of royal guests—the Shah of Persia will stay there on his state visit next May.

The decorator, petite, good-looking Mrs. "Hourig" Hourigan, who has her studio in the King's Road, Chelsea.

I called on Mrs. Hourigan and she was taken aback to learn that I knew of the plans for the redecoration. "I have been asked not to discuss this matter," she said. "I have not got the contract yet."

Her advice

But I understand that Mrs. Hourigan has already talked with the Queen and members of the household about the redecoration. The Queen has seen some designs and there have been some alterations suggested.

Mrs. Hourigan, in her late Twenties, is among the best of her kind in the world. She has done much work recently for friends of the Queen and Princess Margaret.

She advised Lord and Lady Blandford on the redecoration of their eighteenth-century mansion in Oxfordshire and Peter Ward, son of the Earl of Dudley, on his Warwickshire home.

Colour-mad

She is a neat, precise, meticulous woman who always wears a hat. And she has definite views on decorating. The Hourigan idea I like best is the one she has for colour-mad clients. She does one room as a joke room. "I usually pick an impossible, box-shaped room. Then I put in the mad wallpaper, they love the mad wallpaper, they love the mad wallpaper, they love the mad wallpaper."

To catch a thief...

Mrs. Frank Storey, Chief of Police of Cleveland, Ohio, looked every inch a police chief—big, burly, and tough. But he is a man with brains as well as brawn. Among other things he is in London to present one of the latest American aids to detection to Commander George Hatherill, head of Scotland Yard's C.I.D.

It is a very special type of camera for banks and offices which takes pictures of robbers "in the net" once the alarm goes off.

"We have fitted it into several of our banks," he told me. "and it takes very accurate pictures of people holding up a bank. It is hidden in the wall, and if it is a very large room several cameras are needed, crossfiring in all directions."

Churchill touch

WE have returned to our old wartime spirit of co-operation with the United States—

The Prime Minister, Mr. Harold Macmillan, talks every day with President Eisenhower on the Transatlantic telephone.

What welcome news this is. It takes us back to the wartime days when Sir Winston Churchill talked as "A Former Naval Person" to President Roosevelt.

Prime Minister and President exchange information and thrust out the day-to-day problems.

These calls are particularly important now with the fiery Middle East situation. It was in one of these telephone calls that Mr. Macmillan told Mr. Eisenhower that he had made up his mind to visit Athens and Ankara.

In one way these calls are even better than the wartime calls. The line is so much better. A Transatlantic cable call today is as clear as a local call.

The Prime Minister, incidentally, has almost given up hope of a summer holiday—he usually goes grouse shooting. At Downing Street I was told: "He is tremendously busy. There is a full programme. He is too busy to take a holiday."

CLIPPED WINGS

THE QUEEN is economising. She has decided to cut down on the expense of her air travel. For it has been costing the royal purse £20 an hour to run the Vikings with which the Queen's Flight was equipped.

These aircraft have been sold. And the Queen is now flying in the smaller, more economical Heron aircraft.

But she is using these only for short, interior flights. And all flight overseas flights in future will be by commercial airlines.

I had a look inside three of the Vikings which have been sold to a private airline. I was surprised, almost disappointed, at the austerity of the interiors. There was no luxury. They are simply upholstered in royal blue cloth, royal blue pile carpet, and a cream hide ceiling.

The only really unusual feature—one that no commercial airline has—is that the armchairs have parachutes hidden in the back of their cushions, just in case a member of the Royal Family had to leave suddenly.

The dance—and the music

I FELT sorry for the 12 talented young dancers who opened up the "Western Theatre Ballet" at the Lyric, Hammersmith. For their brilliant, imaginatively directed show opened in the midst of a tremendous row with the powerful Musicians' Union.

The cause of the row is that the dancers cannot afford to pay an orchestra. So they dance to recorded music.

But the union is insisting that they employ real live musicians.

"We simply cannot afford to employ an orchestra as much as we would like to," 27-year-old choreographer Elizabeth West told me after the show.

"Of course, we plan to engage a live orchestra as soon as we can afford it. But if they don't let us get on our feet financially there won't be a company at all to give the musicians jobs."

It will be a great pity if this gallant Bristol-based company, formed last year to tour the West Country, is forced to fold up. Their four-ballet programme showed what artistry and enterprise this "shoe-string" company possesses.

SADDLE GIRL

LADY SARAH FITZALAN HOWARD, daughter of the Duke and Duchess of Norfolk, has at 16 been chosen to ride for Britain. She is off to Hanover as one of the team of four riders who will represent the country at the European junior show-jumping championships.

Lady Sarah will ride Oberon, the bay gelding which once belonged to Pat Smythe.

Escorts for the lady

LOVELY 25-year-old Lady Jane Vane-Tempest Stewart has been offered a leading role in "Girls in Istanbul," an Italian-German film to be made in Rome and Istanbul.

But, I am told, she is so happy "just idling around in Rome" that she does not know whether to accept the offer.

She is currently being squaled by two escorts—Lord Sherwood's nephew Tim Seely, who was the London star of the controversial play "Ten and Ten," and Terence Longden, actor husband of actress Barbara Jefford.

Mr Seely is the 22-year-old Old Etonian who was asked to leave the east of "Variation on a Theme" because he "looked too young" playing opposite Margaret Leighton.

Mr Longden, a 35-year-old New Zealander, is playing the part of a Roman soldier in "Ban Hui" now being completed in Rome.

Lady Jane produced this unexpected off-the-cuff remarks on love. "Everybody keeps asking me when I am getting married. Of course, I'd love to, but I don't know to whom."

THE signal mast situated on the highest point of the hill overlooking the Police station at Aberdeen has now been fitted with electric lamp signals for use at night as typhoon warnings.

Hitherto, Aberdeen has only possessed the ordinary daylight code signals and the new electrical station should prove a boon to the fishermen of the region.

The high position of the mast makes it clearly visible to vessels many miles out to sea.

The Japanese light cruiser, Isuzu, of 5,170 tons standard displacement is expected to arrive in Hongkong from Amoy on Friday. The Japanese gunboat Suga is expected from Canton the same day.

The Isuzu was expected to be in Hongkong on August 29, but this visit has been postponed through the vessel being suddenly diverted to Foochow, the open warfare resulting from the drive against the "Reds" causing anxiety to the Japanese Government for the safety of its nationals, both there and in Amoy.

Zoro Apha, the "oldest man in the world"—he is about 160—is seriously ill in Istanbul. It is feared he may not recover as his system is worn out, and doctors are unable to suggest any helpful treatment.

This is one minute 10 seconds better than the Colony record established in 1948. H. E. Maj.-Gen. O. C. Barrett, Officer Commanding British Forces in China followed the progress of the race by launch.

Scouring the flat five places, the South Wales Borderers carried off the team event.

Dawn Drama In The New Territories Detective Attacked: Gun Stolen

Three Hurt In Road Accidents

A six-year-old boy, Ng Chui-hor, of 548, Reclamation Street, first floor, was admitted to Kowloon Hospital yesterday morning after he had been knocked down and injured by a private car in Nathan Road, near its junction with Nelson Street.

In another traffic accident yesterday, a six-year-old girl, Lai Mun-ting, of 34, Shantung Street, second floor, was hit by a private car in Sai Yeung Choi Street. The injured girl was admitted to Kowloon Hospital for treatment.

A 27-year-old man, Chen Tai-yuen, of 31, Nga Tsan Wai Road, second floor, fell off his bicycle in Hammer Hill Road, about 100 yards from Clear Water Bay Road, at about 3.45 p.m. yesterday.

Two cyclists sustained injuries in a fall were admitted to Kowloon Hospital.

Death Register

Deaths occurring in the Clear Water Bay peninsula may now be registered at the Sai Kung police station or at the Births and Deaths General Register Office, Li Po Chun Chambers, second floor, Hongkong.

This was announced in the Government Gazette today upon the closure of the District Register Office for the Clear Water Bay peninsula.

SCHEME FOR MODERN APARTMENTS

A scheme to replace two tenement-type houses with blocks of modern apartments at a cost of $90,000 was outlined in exemption proceedings concerning 13 and 14 Yun Nan Lane, Kowloon, brought before a Tenancy Tribunal this morning.

The Tribunal comprised Mr. J. H. G. Way (President), with Mr. L. D. Kilbuck and Mr. Andrew Tse.

Mr. Yui Yuen-on, the applicant and registered owner of the two houses is represented in the hearing by Mr. P. Zimmern of Zimmern and Co.

THE BUILDINGS

Describing the existing buildings Mr. P. H. Hing-fong, architect, said that they were over 35 years old and flanked on either side by new buildings. They are generally defective and the dark, steep stairs create a fire hazard.

It is hoped to replace the houses with two six-storeyed apartment blocks, increasing floor area from 3,125 sq. ft. to 4,590 sq. ft. in the new blocks.

Tenants who have filed opposing applications are represented by Mr. Patrick Yu instructed by C. Y. Kwan and Co., Mr. P. Wong of Peter C. Wong and Co., and Mr. D. L. Holland-Roberts of Hastings and Co.

The hearing continues this afternoon.

Police Appeal To Public For Help

A detective Police constable was attacked by two men and robbed of his revolver while on patrol in the Shatin district of the New Territories early this morning. The detective saw two men walking along the railway line near the level crossing opposite to the Lin Tai Textile Factory at about 5 a.m. He stopped the two men and searched them. Not being satisfied with their explanation about certain articles found in their possession, the detective announced that he was taking them to Shatin Police Station.

ASSAULTED

The two men then assaulted the detective, who attempted to draw his revolver but was overpowered and disarmed.

The two men escaped, taking the Police service revolver with them. The constable was treated for his injuries but was not admitted to hospital.

The Police are seeking witnesses and information regarding the two assailants. Persons who were on Tai Po Road between Kowloon and Shatin early this morning and who may have seen the assailants are asked to report to any Police Station. Members of the public who may be able to assist the Police in their enquiries are also asked to come forward.

RECESSIONS AFFECT HONGKONG TRADE

The shipping recession, the downward trend of the North American economy, the rise in interest rates and other adverse factors had had an effect on trade generally in the Colony, in the last 12 months.

Mr. E. F. Watts, Chairman of Directors of Hongkong and Far Eastern Investment Co., Ltd., said this morning.

He was summarising the trading conditions in Hongkong during the year ended June 30, 1958. In his report presented to shareholders of the company at the 12th Ordinary General Meeting held at Jardine's Matheson and Co., Ltd., he said that competition from the Chinese mainland began to be felt in increasing measure by local manufacturers.

POPULATION

He added: "On the other hand, the continuously rising population has given further support to such industries as building and catering and to the utility companies."

"Share prices in Hongkong fell sharply during the autumn of 1957 following the rise in the United Kingdom and Hongkong Bank rates and the tightening of credit."

"There was a fair recovery in the market in the Spring of 1958 as the credit squeeze was gradually relaxed, but at the end of your Company's financial year the level of share prices was still somewhat below that of a year earlier."

"The net profit for the year after deducting taxation and management and other expenses amounted to $531,694 compared with $405,564 for the year 1956-57, an increase of 14.1%."

To this must be added the balance brought forward from the previous year of $60,277 making a total of $592,171 available for appropriation. Out of this sum it is proposed to transfer $125,000 to general reserve, to pay a dividend of eight per cent and to carry forward $47,171 to next year.

"The book value of the Company's investments as at June 30, 1958 was $7,008,671 compared with $6,826,714 at the end of the previous year. The market value of the quoted investments, together with the unquoted investments was $8,238,103. The geographical distribution of these investments was 92.6% in Hongkong and 4.4% in Singapore and Malaya."

RE-ELECTED

The statement of accounts and annual report, proposed by Mr. Watts and seconded by Sir Tsun-nin Chau, was unanimously passed.

Sir Tsun-nin Chau was unanimously re-elected director on a motion proposed by Mr. D. Hung and seconded by Mr. A. D. Angus.

Proposed by Mr. G. L. Marshall and seconded by Mr. C. A. Adam, Messrs. Pent, Marwick, Mitchell and Co. were re-appointed auditors.

Those present at the meeting were: Directors—Mr. E. F. Watts (Chairman), Sir Tsun-nin Chau, Mr. Lee D'Almeida, Shareholders—Mr. H. Sidbury, representing the Secretaries, Jardine, Matheson and Co., Ltd.; Mr. R. M. G. da Silva, representing Empire Finance Co., Ltd.; Mr. C. A. Adam, representing Jardine, Matheson and Co., Ltd.; Mr. R. M. G. da Silva, representing Banque Indochine S.A.; Mr. A. D. Angus and Mr. G. L. Marshall.

Pensionable

The following officers have been confirmed to the permanent and pensionable establishment, according to today's Government Gazette:

Mr. H. J. Head and Mr. F. W. Blackburn, Education Officers; Miss J. E. Hall, Mistress; Dr. Theodore Chang, Medical Officer; Dr. Sylvia Hui-lock, Woman Medical Officer; Mr. A. Rawson, Surveyor of Ships; Mr. Yang Tsung, Magistrate; Mr. R. A. C. Brown, Building Surveyor; Mr. H. R. A. Chamberlain, Engineer; Mr. J. T. Thorpe, Briefing Officer.

They've Been Away From Home A Long, Long Time

Gudrun, Christine, Anneliese and Helen — four of the 11-girl Conty troupe.

By ANDREW SLOAN

Eight years away from home, 150,000 miles travelled and 30 countries visited is the record on the books of showman, Herr Heinz Conty. With 21 years of experience in the entertainment world behind him in 1950, Conty decided to take a troupe of girls on a theatre-tour of Europe.

When they left Cologne, Germany at that time, life in the entertainment business was tough, and after their first taste of the outside world, Herr Conty's girls decided: "we're not going back just yet."

Conty arrived in Hongkong yesterday from Manila to begin a month-long engagement in two local night-clubs, with his beautiful German "exports."

Movie Fans

Understandably, the girls now in the Colony, new all of them have stayed with Conty all the way. The girls' ages range from 16 to 28. In fact only three of the original troupe are left.

Romance you say? Not quite, only three of the girls have been lost to matrimony during the whole eight years.

As with most night-club groups and artists, Hongkong is always looked forward to as a high spot. So it was with Conty and The Girls.

Most of them are avid movie fans. What they saw of Hongkong in "Love is a Many Splendoured Thing," "Soldier of Fortune," and "Flight to Hongkong," sharpened their appetite for more.

Since as far back down the line as Calcutta, on the present Far Eastern tour, they have all been told, "You must go to Hongkong. It's cheap. It's the Paris of the East." So without hesitation, Conty went to work with pen and paper, and soon was able to inform his girls of the good news—Hongkong in September.

Conty recalled some of the cities they have visited, and picks out three, as being the most "remarkable" he has ever visited. They are Casablanca, Cairo and Hongkong.

Cairo—now thereby, hangs a tale.

They were performing in the Egyptian capital when the Suez bubble burst. And they were right in the middle of it. "It was just like during the war," Conty reminisced.

Warning

"Over the radio came a warning from the British, they were going to bomb Cairo at such and such a time, and warned civilians to keep out of the way."

"At the time the bombing was to take place we all went up into the hotel roof to watch the fireworks. We were lucky none of them came near our section of the town."

What followed is hard to forget by the members of the group. There were no ships out, and the airport had been bombed. It was only after much discussion with some friends of his that Conty was able to squeeze himself and his charges onto a loaded down Greek freighter.

"It was OK as far as Cyprus, even in December, but being stuck out on the deck, things began to get colder and colder as we neared Athens. However, with plenty of work and a comfortable hotel, we had a wonderful "Greek Christmas," Conty said.

After Greece there followed a whirlwind tour through Rome, Napoli, Tunis, Morocco, Algiers, Barcelona, Marseilles and Turkey.

In December 1957, the Far Eastern tour began with Calcutta, Singapore, an extensive tour of Malaya, Cambodia and Manila.

Incident

Looking back over previous trips, Conty recalled an amusing incident on a Spanish beach.

While touring Spain the girls were walking around a seaside town and bought some very nice looking two-piece swimsuits. What better chance than to try them on then and there? They proceeded to do. Mr. Conty calmly sat back in a chair in a small bistro and waited for the girls to return.

He did not have long to wait. Suddenly they came running around the corner, blushing furiously.

They blurted out that when they appeared on the beach in their two-piece swim suits, the crowd had stormed them and they had to seek the protection of the local police force. The girls had not reckoned on Spanish modesty. Well now they know.

No doubt Hongkong shall be seeing the group again in the near future, because Conty said, "I have made enough contacts on this trip to prepare for a more extensive tour next time."

The troupe have their Hongkong debut tonight at the Blue Heaven and Princess Garden nightclubs.
